A Happy Home For Sasha

We adopted Sasha right after Thanksgiving 2005. She has done very well in our home, growing fast and getting big! She is sweet and affectionate, and loves her new surroundings. Sasha has more than two acres of woods to romp in, steep trails for hiking and walking, a creek to splash in, and a great deck to sit in the sun and survey her domain. We are home all the time, so she has our constant supervision and companionship.

Sasha has lots of extended family to visit and all have received her well. Everyone loves her velvety, brindled coat and hazel-gold eyes. She loves her dog cousin, a 95-pound Anatolian Shepherd mix. Sasha is very tolerant of our parrots and so far shows no interest in the local cats.

She's been around horses, llamas and lots of other dogs in her training classes. One of her favorite dog pals is a miniature poodle/shitzu mix. Sasha seems to understand how to curb her play to the size of her playmate, be it dog or child - but when she wants to play rough with her dog cousin or a friend's 6-month-old Akita puppy, she can really play hard!

Sasha is quickly learning all her commands in her two puppy obedience classes. She especially understands "leave it." She can be a bit stubborn at times, and jumps and romps on people more than we like, but we're working on curbing her enthusiasm. She would never make a show dog with her crooked, floppy, cropped ears and turned-out back legs, but we don't care.

Our thanks go to the CCAA Rescue and Sasha's foster caregiver for their care and efforts in linking us with Sasha, and all their support and advice while we adjusted to each other.

~ Paul, Amy & Sasha

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Every week, we receive more surrender applications and calls from shelters looking to re-home needy Corsos. Consequently, we need more people willing to donate their time and abilities in placing these dogs. Caring hearts, patient hands and gassed up cars are in high demand! The Cane Corso is an exceptional breed with a unique temperament; knowledgeable handlers for transport, evaluation and foster are invaluable in our attempt to reduce the number of homeless Corsos. We hope that all CCAA members will submit an online volunteer application to help needy Corsos in your area!

We welcome all comments, suggestions, offers to help or information requests.

Thank you all for your support!
